

Jamie Kemp

Jamie has been helping the community, in one way or another, for over 30 years.

Jamie grew up in Somerset and before moving to Devon in 2006 he was a Firefighter in Dorset Fire Brigade for nearly 10 years. He then went and studied at Cardiff University and onto Glamorgan University before moving to Devon to complete his teacher training. He began teaching at a mainstream secondary school before moving on to teaching children at the Deaf Academy in Exeter and then teaching children with SEND at another school in Devon.

During his teaching career Jamie was a volunteer for Dartmoor Search and Rescue team and a First responder for South West Ambulance Foundation Trust. In 2015 he left his teaching career to become a stay-at-home father, looking after his deaf son.

Jamie now wants to go further to help others locally at a political level. Political issues have always played a huge part of Jamie's life and he has been a lifelong supporter of the Liberal Democrats (back to the SDP times). Now with more time to commit, being able to support his community and Devon as a county has never been more important.

Jamie is local to the area, married with 3 children, and volunteers for the Red Cross as an Emergency Response Volunteer.

He would like your support to be selected as the LibDem candidates for Exe Valley